How and when to study

We offer 'blended' courses - face to face training, followed up by a structured programme of activities, focussing you on the key skills and assessments. Work is marked and feedback to you between sessions, so you know how you are progressing and can move to the next stage. Tutorial support is available by telephone and email between sessions.

To get you started, we commence with a dedicated induction session, focussing you on key course requirements, including an overview of the course, key requirements and information on course texts and resources.

How do you benefit?

Starting with classroom sessions, you gain a good understanding of the course upfront. This is important as marketing is an integrated subject and you need to understand how theory works (concept), can be used in practice (application) and can assess the usefulness of the technique (evaluation). It also means you can identify your personal strengths and weaknesses early on and therefore focus your studying efforts too. We can then align online sessions to build and grow skills further. You have the added advantages of less travelling time and you can choose when to study at home, at work or when away.

Please note that dates may be subject to change and any changes will be notified to students at the earliest opportunity

Please note that you must be a CIM member and have entered for the assessments prior to the following deadlines:

By post: 1 October 2011
